

Saving Money with Baby

We all know that raising a child is hard work and is expensive. To help ease the expense, I've compiled a small list of coupons, discounts, and freebies to help! Check out the list below...

Gerber

Gerber has a variety of great offers on its website. This includes an email list that will net you over $100 in coupons, special offers on Gerber life insurance, and even offers on clothing. (Note that while I mention the life insurance, I do not recommend it. The idea behind life insurance is to provide for someone should something happen to you. For example, if you work while your spouse stay at home to raise the kids, the working spouse should have a life insurance policy should something happen to them. This policy will provide income for the surviving spouse and child(ren). As a result, you do not need life insurance on your child.

Pampers Gifts to Grow

Pampers puts reward codes on every box of diapers, training pants, and wipes. You can sign up online and enter the codes. You can even enter the codes via your Smartphone. Once you have compiled enough reward codes, you can redeem them for free stuff including toys, gift cards and books. Regardless of the expiration date on the package, according to the Pampers website, all codes are valid through 12/31/2013, as they have decided to extend this program for another year.

Amazon Mom

Sign up (it's free) and get great discounts on diapers, formula, and even one year of free two-day shipping through Amazon Prime. Check out the benefits of subscribing and saving options coupled with the Amazon Mom 30% discount. You can get your essentials nearly half price in some cases, all with free shipping. This is an amazing deal. Plus, even though the name of the program is called "Amazon Mom", any primary caregiver for the child can sign up, regardless if it is the child's mother or not.

Similac StrongMoms

Similac is one of the best companies as far as freebies and discounts go. If you sign up with them (again, for free) they will send you free samples of Similac, coupons for Similac, along with other great offers. The nice thing about the Similac program is that it is community driven, meaning you can interact with other Mom's for advice and tips.

Earth's Best

Earth's Best offers organic products for your baby. On their website, they offer many free coupons, samples, and resources. Try the Earth's Best free gift packs, printable coupons, and the Share-n-Save program, which allows you to invite friends and family members to save money with you via coupons.

Enfamil

Enfamil offers many great coupons on their site. You can get a certificate to redeem for free samples of Enfamil products and print valuable coupons right from their website. Additionally, Enfamil is currently offering up to $250 in free gifts, products and advice and nutritional information when you sign up with them online.
